Horizon Outreach Partners and Events: online presence audit

28 October 2026
Prepared by Matthew Sharpe

Horizon has a clean, secure website, one consistent address and phone, and posts on four accounts every weekday. But the site recruits without ever saying what the job is, hides its only apply form two clicks deep, and sends phones far more than they need; the four accounts reach 41 followers between them. Most fixes are setup work, not ad spend.

Fine on a good signal, slow on a weak one

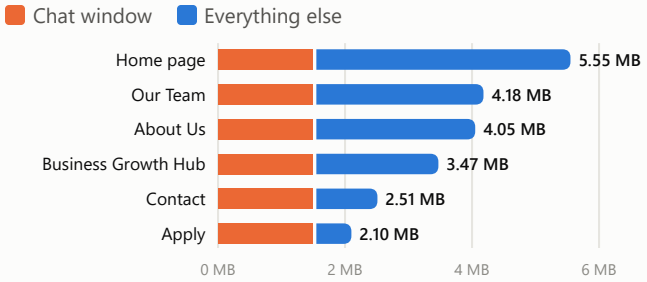

Home page on a phone, empty cache, 28 Oct (our test, not a Lighthouse score). The text and button show fast everywhere; the 2 MB photo is what drags

The Apply page is done in 1.8 s on 4G.

Heavy pages, and the chat window's share

What each page sends to a phone. The chat window alone is 1.52 MB on every page

The home photo is a 1.99 MB PNG; 7 font families add about 700 KB.

What Horizon does right: HTTPS everywhere with automatic certificate renewal · the same address, phone and email on every page and on Facebook · a short apply form (4 fields, right phone keyboards, every field labelled) · text-to-apply, which suits field recruiting · no ad or analytics trackers · posting on all four accounts every weekday · real team photos on social, no income or "be your own boss" claims in anything we could see.

Website: what is wrong, and the fix

- No way to apply from the home page. The menu has 7 items, 2 of them legal pages, and no Apply. The form is reachable only from Our Team → "Join The Team!". Apply button in the header, the hero and the menu.
- The site never says what the job is: no role, pay, hours, location, duties or requirements, no jobs page, no Indeed link. A jobs page per role with honest pay facts.
- Numbers can't be tapped. 0 call or text links; "Text Apply to 704-765-0308" is plain text. Tap-to-call and tap-to-text (APPLY pre-filled).
- The chat window opens by itself over 27% of a tablet screen and sits over the phone form's Submit button; it sets a 13-month cookie nobody is told about. Open on tap only; name it in the privacy policy.
- Legal pages are unfilled templates. Terms: "Country refers to: STATE OF OFFICE", dated January 2025, before the domain existed. Privacy says no data goes to third parties; the form and chat send it to an outside service. Rewrite with the real company; attorney review.
- Dead ends: "Learn More" goes to a site that doesn't exist (http://team); 18 links go nowhere, including the footer "Contact" on every page. Fix or remove.
- Testimonials can't be checked: 4 first-and-last names, no company or photo, each shown twice. Real quotes with permission, or none.
- Hard to read and find: white on the brand orange is 2.23:1 (4.5:1 needed), Submit 1.87:1; no main heading on any of the 8 pages. Dark text on orange; one heading per page.

Sources: our checks of horizonoutreachpartners.com on 28 Oct 2026: 13 pages, 49 links, phone 390 px and tablet 820/1180 px; speed is our own Chrome test as an iPhone on Wi-Fi, typical 4G (20 Mbps) and a weak signal (1.6 Mbps), not Lighthouse; page sizes from Chrome's network log. Nothing was submitted.

What a job seeker goes through, on a phone and a tablet

From a post to the apply form

Step by step, as a first-time visitor on a phone, 28 Oct

1. Sees a post or ad on a phone Friction
   Instagram, Facebook, X and LinkedIn put a log-in / open-the-app pop-up over the profile
2. Lands on the home page Blocker
   No Apply, Jobs or Careers link; "Text Apply to 704-765-0308" is plain text in the footer
3. Opens the menu (45×29 px button) Blocker
   7 items, 2 of them legal pages; none says Apply or Jobs
4. Guesses "Our Team", taps "Join The Team!" Friction
   The only link to the form on the whole site
5. Reaches /apply/ Blocker
   No role, pay, hours, location or next step; a "Take Me Home" button sends them back
6. Fills in 4 fields and taps Submit Friction
   Short form, right keyboards, labelled; the chat banner can cover Submit; Submit is 1.87:1 contrast

Phone and tablet: measured

Website at 390 px (phone), 820 and 1180 px (iPad); socials logged out as an iPhone and iPad

- Works: the phone and tablet menu opens and every item can be reached; no page scrolls sideways at any width; the apply form fits all three widths.
- Small tap targets: 220 of 261 tappable items on phone pages are under 44 px; footer links are 20 px tall, carousel dots 6 px, the menu button 45×29 px.
- Small text: form labels are 12 px; 166 text items on phone pages are under 16 px.
- Chat window: a 390×120 px banner on phones (14% of the screen); a 432×600 px panel on tablets until closed.
- Tablet landscape: the 7-item menu wraps onto two lines at 1180 px.
- Socials on a phone: every platform covers the profile with a log-in or open-the-app pop-up, so the website has to carry the hiring facts and the Apply button.
- Instagram on a phone: the bio is cut off at "...sales systems that gen...", and speaks to clients, not recruits. The hiring post prints the apply link inside the image, where it can't be tapped, and the grid crops it off both edges.
- LinkedIn on a tablet: sends a logged-out visitor straight to LinkedIn's sign-in wall.

Trust and housekeeping: what is wrong, and the fix

- The name changes from place to place: "Horizon" (site, X, LinkedIn, Google), "Horizon Outreach Partners and Events" (Instagram, Facebook, privacy policy), handles @horizonhopeinc and @Horizon_opsales; "HOPE" appears nowhere yet. Settle one public name, then use it everywhere.
- Another "Horizon Outreach" owns the name online: a Houston nonprofit holds the registered trademark HORIZON OUTREACH, both domains, @horizonoutreach on Instagram and X, and the Glassdoor page that comes up for the name (about 40 reviews, about 2.2 stars). Always use the full name; claim Indeed and Glassdoor pages under it.
- The owner's personal username is public in the site's user list, author page and page code on every page. Change the author name and hide the author page.
- Email may land in spam: the anti-spoofing policy (DMARC) is set to "none" with no reports. Turn on reports, then tighten it.
- Two form systems: contact goes to WordPress, apply to an outside service, so leads arrive in two places; the contact message is capped at 180 characters. One form system, one inbox.
- The blog speaks to business owners: 3 long posts at exact clock times (17 Jul, 7 Aug, 15 Sep), nothing since. Posts for recruits: the work, the training, the pay structure.
- Search basics: page titles are "<Page> - Horizon" with no city or job; 23 of 40 images have no description; theme demo images are listed for Google. "Field Sales Jobs in Charlotte, NC" style titles; clean sitemaps.

What other Charlotte offices put in their job posts

Entry-level field and event roles on SimplyHired, page 1, 28 Oct. Showing pay is the norm; Horizon shows none anywhere

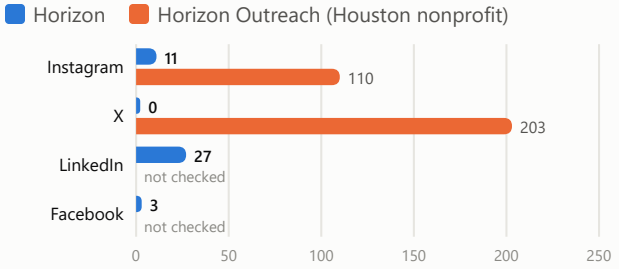

Company	Title	Pay shown
New Heights Marketing	Retail Brand Associate	$24.01–$28.92 / hour
MAD Events & Advertising	Entry Level Event Staff	$24.66–$29.70 / hour
AlohaProduce Co	Communications Representative	$3,750–$4,425 / month
Azalea Acquisitions	Sales Management Trainee	$700–$1,600 / week
Horizon Outreach Partners	no live post found under the name (LinkedIn 0, SimplyHired 0)	none on the site or social

Social: what is right

- Posting on all four accounts every weekday; all posted on 27 Oct.
- The same orange-sun skyline logo everywhere, and every footer link works.
- Real team photos (ATV day, jet skis, pickleball), not stock.
- The X hiring post links /apply/ and the text line, and the link can be tapped.
- No income claims, no "be your own boss", no luxury-lifestyle posts in anything visible.

Social: what is wrong, and the fix

- One hiring post in 19 days, with no role, pay, hours or job type. A weekly hiring post with those facts.
- The same caption on every platform, up to 12 hashtags, mostly quotes. Write for each platform; 3–5 hashtags.
- Spam comments left up. Delete; turn on Instagram's comment filter.
- Bio and link talk to clients. "Now hiring in Charlotte" + link to Apply.

Social and listings: housekeeping

- Google profile is named just "Horizon", lists "Ste 321" that the website leaves out, and has posting (reviews) turned off. Full name, matching address; find out why reviews are off.
- LinkedIn says "Public Company" with no headquarters; the site links it by number, which hits the sign-in wall. Privately held, address, the named link.
- Facebook has no username, and the site links it with a tracking URL. Claim a username.
- X has 84 posts and 0 followers. Put the time into Instagram and LinkedIn; ask the team to follow.
- Post designs don't fit Instagram's grid; no video at all. Design at 1080 × 1350; short Reels of the team.

One company, five names: settle it before HOPE adds a sixth

Where	Name shown	Handle or address	Category it picked
Website	Horizon	horizonoutreachpartners.com	"sales agency" (home), "marketing agency" (blog)
Instagram	Horizon Outreach Partners and Events	@horizonhopeinc	—
Facebook	Horizon Outreach Partners and Events | Charlotte NC	no username (a number)	Advertising/Marketing
X	Horizon	@Horizon_opsales	Professional Services
LinkedIn	Horizon	/company/horizon-outreach-partners	Marketing Services, "Public Company"
Google	Horizon	2459 Wilkinson Blvd Ste 321	Business to business service

Sources: Instagram, Facebook, X, LinkedIn, Google Maps, BBB, TikTok, YouTube and Threads, viewed logged out on 28 Oct 2026; counts a platform hides when logged out (older posts, first-post dates) were not estimated. Houston figures from its own Instagram and X profiles.

The HOPE site and a second Indeed account

The idea: a second website under HOPE so Horizon can open a second Indeed employer account and get more applicants. Indeed's own guidance speaks to this directly:

> Among reasons a job post may be flagged: "posting identical or very similar roles from multiple employer accounts", and "listing the same vacancy multiple times with different or only slightly varied titles." Indeed, "Why is my job flagged", updated 26 Oct 2026

> "Each position should typically be represented by a single, active post." "Ensure the company name and job title are accurate reflections of the business and role." Indeed, "Job Posting Rules and Policies", updated 8 Apr 2026

What can follow: posts hidden or pushed down, paid sponsorship required, free visibility lost, and Indeed "may disable any company's account, for any or no reason." With the same jobs on both accounts, the main Horizon account is exposed too. That it has worked elsewhere may only mean it hasn't been caught yet.

Three ways to get more applicants within the rules

1. HOPE as a real second brand Within the rules

HOPE hires for genuinely different roles (for example event staff) with its own posts, once per real location, under an accurate company name.

2. One account, much better posts Within the rules

Real titles, pay shown and explained, the actual location, door-to-door or event work stated plainly. Sponsor the best posts. The rules above already restrict vague "marketing" titles.

3. A HOPE careers site that feeds the same account Within the rules

The way Vector Marketing runs workforstudents.com: a recruiting site and its own ads, naming the parent company, sending applicants to the same Indeed account and form.

Is the HOPE name free?

Quick checks, 28 Oct (a knockout search, not legal clearance)

- Trademarks: 450 live US marks in marketing and business services contain HOPE; HOPE EVENTS is registered for arranging promotional events (Hope Media Group, reg. 8137790). Nothing filed as HORIZON OUTREACH PARTNERS.
- Handles: @hope, @hope_outreach, @hope.outreach, @horizonhope taken on Instagram; @HOPEOutreach and @HorizonHOPE taken on X. @hopeoutreach and @hopeoutreachpartners look free on Instagram (confirm signed in).
- Domains: hopeoutreachpartners.com, joinhopeteam.com and careerswithhope.com have no registration record; hopeoutreach.com, joinhope.com and hopeevents.com are taken. Nothing was bought.
- Advice: a compound name ("HOPE Outreach Partners"), checked by an attorney before any filing or printing.

To settle on the Zoom call

What we need from Horizon to start

- The exact legal name and state of the company (we found a North Carolina LLC listing but could not open the state record).
- Who owns the current Indeed account, and the roles, pay structure and locations being hired for.
- Whether staff collect donations for charities: in North Carolina, paid solicitors need a state licence (G.S. 131F-16).
- Why Google reviews are turned off on the profile.
- Access as a user (not passwords) to WordPress.com, Google, Meta, LinkedIn and Indeed, and who approves posts and spend.

How we can help: the plan

1 Fix the basics

- Apply button in the header, hero and menu
- Tap-to-call and tap-to-text links
- Chat window stops opening by itself; images and fonts cut
- Legal pages with the real company and texting terms
- Dead links, contrast, headings fixed
- One name on every account and listing

2 Make it a recruiting site

- A jobs page per role: pay, hours, location, the real work
- Google job markup so roles show in Google Jobs
- Real team photos and a "day in the job" section
- One form, one inbox, fast replies to applicants
- Instagram bio and Story highlight that lead to Apply
- Google profile renamed, reviews sorted out

3 Grow

- A HOPE careers site that stays inside Indeed's rules
- A regular posting plan built around hiring
- Indeed and Glassdoor employer pages claimed
- Other channels: ZipRecruiter, LinkedIn, Handshake, referrals
- Analytics with a cookie notice
- A monthly applicant report
