RATES FOR 2026

I build websites and run the marketing for small businesses.

Sites, social, local search, print, and the tracking underneath it that tells you where your leads actually came from. You deal with me directly, not an account manager who passes your job to someone you never meet.

AT A GLANCE

Monthly, three tiers	$800 – $3,200
Weekly, same work	$200 – $800
Website build	$2,200 – $8,000
Setup fee	None
Notice to stop	30 days
Who owns the work	You do

$800

a month to start, or $200 a week.
Websites are priced separately, from $2,200.

WHAT I DO

Five things, and I do all of them myself.

Most of this gets sold as five separate contracts by five separate companies. It is the same five things either way.

Websites	Sites written in code rather than assembled in a page builder, so they load fast and nothing breaks when a plugin updates. Landing pages for a specific offer or season. Copy for the pages, forms that capture leads, and the tracking that says which channel sent them. This page is a fair sample — I built it the same way I would build yours.
Design and print	Logos, colours and type set up as a system so they still work in two years. Flyers, one-pagers, door hangers, service agreements, field sheets and checklists — tested to an exact page count and handed over as a print-ready PDF. Social profile and banner sets, branded QR codes, photo cleanup and cutouts.
Social and content	Posts written for the platform they go on instead of one post copied across five. Carousels, infographics and feed graphics. Articles for your own site. Every post comes with alternate openings and the lines I cut, so it can be reused later without starting over.
Local search and leads	Your Google Business Profile set up properly and posted to, a system for asking customers for reviews, and Google and Meta ads built with a spend cap so a test cannot run away from you. Plus the unglamorous part — how fast someone answers a new lead, which decides more than the ads do.
Research and planning	A written plan with phases, a budget, and what we measure. What your competitors are actually doing, read page by page rather than guessed at. And a check on the advertising rules for your trade before copy goes out, which matters more in some trades than others.

WHAT IT COSTS

Three tiers. No setup fee, no contract past twelve months.

Weekly and monthly buy exactly the same work. The difference is how long you are committed for.

> NOTE Weekly is a quarter of the monthly rate, and there are fifty-two weeks in a year rather than forty-eight. So paying weekly costs you about one extra month over a year. Monthly is cheaper, weekly lets you stop sooner — I would rather say that up front than have you work it out later.

Foundation

For a business whose online presence does not currently work.

$800 / MONTH

or $200 a week

- Website up to 7 pages, hosted and maintained
- Two content updates a month
- Google Business Profile set up and optimised
- Four social posts a month on one platform
- A one-page report every month

RECOMMENDED

Engine

For a business that wants steady output rather than a one-off fix.

$1,600 / MONTH

or $400 a week

- Everything in Foundation
- Website up to 15 pages, unlimited small edits, one new page a month
- Twelve posts a month across two platforms, plus a designed graphic
- Weekly Google profile posts, review requests, listings cleaned up
- A campaign landing page every quarter
- Lead forms with call and form tracking
- A working session with me every month

Pipeline

For a business with demand already, and nothing catching it.

$3,200 / MONTH

or $800 a week

- Everything in Engine
- Google and Meta ads managed, creative and copy included, on up to $10,000 a month of ad spend
- Twenty posts a month across three platforms, plus two designed graphics
- Two researched articles a month for your site
- Lead response and tracking built and maintained
- A strategy review each quarter, and print work as you need it
- A report every week

You own the website, the files and the logins.

If we stop working together, nothing switches off and nothing gets held back. The site, the source files, the artwork, the ad accounts and your Google profile are all in your name from day one — not mine, and not on my card.

None	Setup or onboarding fee
30 days	Notice to stop, or a week on weekly
12 mo	Longest commitment I will ask for
Yours	Every file, once it is paid for

WEBSITES

Priced separately, because a build is not a monthly job.

A retainer covers running the site. Building it in the first place is its own piece of work, so it gets its own number.

BUILD	PRICE
Starter — up to 7 pages	$2,200
Standard — 8 to 15 pages	$4,500
Custom — 16 to 30 pages	$8,000

Half at signing, half when it goes live. You own the site and the source files once it is paid for — I do not hold anyone's website as a way of keeping them.

Sign for twelve months and the build is half price.

On Engine or Pipeline, a twelve-month commitment cuts the build fee in half. A $4,500 site becomes $2,250. It is the cheapest way to get a proper site and someone running it at the same time.

ONE-OFF WORK

If you don't want a retainer.

Anything on this list can be bought on its own. Retainer clients take 15% off it.

Brand identity — logo, colours, type, usage rules	$1,500
Logo on its own	$600
Landing page	$900
Print flyer, print-ready	$250
Two flyer designs to compare	$400
Printed document set — agreements, checklists, field sheets	$850
Infographic or carousel	$250
Set of four graphics	$900
Social profile and banner set	$350
Branded QR codes	$120
Photo cleanup, per image	$25
Ten images	$200
Researched article, 1,200–1,600 words	$400
Twelve social posts, one platform	$500
Competitor and market research report	$1,200
Marketing plan — phases, budget, measures	$1,800
Hourly, for odd jobs	$85
Day rate	$600

Running ads without a retainer is 12% of your ad spend, minimum $350 a month. You pay Google and Meta directly and the accounts stay in your name.

HOW IT GOES

What actually happens after you get in touch.

01

A call, about thirty minutes

You tell me what the business does and where the work currently comes from. I ask what you have already tried, including what didn't work, which is usually the more useful half.

02

I write it down and send it to you

A page or two: what I think the problem is, what I would do first, and what it costs. If I think you do not need a retainer I will say so — a one-off build and a Google profile is the right answer more often than people selling retainers admit.

03

You pick a tier, or you don't

No pressure call afterwards. The written version is there so you can think about it without me in the room.

04

First two weeks

Access, accounts, and the parts that are broken. Google profile, tracking, and whatever is currently costing you leads gets fixed before anything new gets built.

05

Then it is a routine

Work goes out on a schedule, you get a report, and we talk once a month. You can stop with thirty days' notice on monthly, or a week on weekly.

WORTH KNOWING

A few things worth knowing before you sign.

Most of this only comes up after someone has signed, so it may as well be on the page.

I don't guarantee rankings, lead volume or revenue

Nobody can, and anyone putting a number in writing is either guessing or counting on you not checking. I will tell you what I expect and I will show you the numbers either way.

I don't do video production or on-site photography

It isn't my trade. I will work with footage or photos you already have, or point you at someone who does it properly, rather than sell it and quietly hand it to a stranger.

Your Google Business Profile stays yours

I manage it, I never own it. Same with your ad accounts — you pay Google and Meta directly, on your own card, and if we stop working together nothing gets switched off.

You own everything, including the files

Website, source files, logos, artwork. Once it is paid for it is yours to take anywhere.

Anything I write for you, I check first

If a number or a claim goes on your website or in an ad, it comes from an original source and I keep a record of what I checked. It is not a clever process, it is just doing it — but a lot of marketing copy is confidently wrong and it is your name on it, not mine.

My rates are lower than the agencies here, on purpose

I am building a client list, so I priced under the market rather than at it. That holds for twelve months from the day you sign, and I will put the date in the agreement so it isn't a surprise later.

GETTING STARTED

Call me, or email and tell me what the business does.

That is genuinely enough to start with. You get me on the phone, not a receptionist and not a queue. If I don't think I am the right fit I will say that instead.

USEFUL TO INCLUDE, IF YOU HAVE IT

- What the business does, and roughly how long it has been going
- Where the work comes from now — referrals, ads, walk-ins, or nothing reliable
- Your website address, if there is one
- What you have already tried that didn't work
