DOWNED WOOD CLEARANCE · S SEDALIA, COLORADO

Option A — we haul it away

Everything in the pile is cut down, carried out, loaded, driven off your property and disposed of. Two people, about a day and a half on site, six loads out.

PREPARED FOR _____ PHONE _____

PROPERTY _____

What we do, in the order we do it

- Walk it with you and agree the edge of the job. Before a saw starts we walk the pile together and mark what is in and what is out, so there is no argument later about a log at the back that nobody meant to include. Anything you want kept, you point at now.
- Photograph the area first. Shots from fixed positions, before anything moves. These are half of the mitigation record described overleaf, and they are the reason the same photographs are worth anything to your insurer.
- Buck the downed wood. The logs and limbs already on the ground are cut with saws into lengths two people can carry — roughly 16 inches through the heavy butt sections, longer where a limb is light enough to shoulder.
- Gather and load by hand. The pile as it stood on the day we surveyed it, the large logs at the bottom included. Carried to the trailer rather than dragged, so the ground under it is not torn up on the way out.
- Haul it off your property. Our truck and trailer, six trips to a wood-waste disposal site. The drive is ours; nothing is stacked at the roadside waiting for a second company.
- Pay the tipping fees. Disposal is inside the price below and is not added to the invoice afterwards.
- Rake down the footprint and photograph it again. The ground the pile sat on is raked out and the loose bark cleared, then shot from the same positions as the before set. You get both sets with the invoice.

The price, line by line

| LINE | WHAT IT COVERS, AND HOW IT IS WORKED OUT | AMOUNT |
|---|---|---|
| Site walk, mark-out and estimate | Free and written, before you decide anything | No charge |
| Two-person crew with saws | About 1½ days on site — 12 crew hours at $95 an hour. Bucking, carrying, loading and the rake-down are all inside this line | $1,140 |
| Hauling and disposal | 6 truck loads at $185 a load, trailer, drive and tipping fee in each one. We count the pile at five; the sixth is bought in advance so a miscount does not come back to you as an extra | $1,110 |
| Before-and-after photographs, itemised invoice and work record | Included with every job — see overleaf | No charge |
| Total, fixed | Nothing else is added, and travel is not billed | $2,250 |

YOUR PRICE
Fixed in writing before any saw starts

$2,250

What this price does not include

- Stump grinding. Nothing in this quote grinds a stump. If you want any ground out we will price it separately, and it cannot be done the same day — utility locates have to be called in first.
- Felling any standing tree. This quote covers material already on the ground. If you want a standing tree taken down we will walk it with you and quote it.
- Anything that is not wood — fencing, wire, metal, building material or household waste mixed into the pile. A disposal site charges differently for it, so it comes out and stays with you unless we agree a price for it.

Terms

- The estimate is free and the price is fixed. $2,250 is the whole price for the work above, and it does not move unless you ask us in writing to add work.
- Payment. Half on the day we start, half on completion.
- If you sign this at your home you have three business days to cancel, in writing, for any reason and with no fee. That is Colorado law and it cannot be waived; every payment, a deposit included, comes back in full. We do not start work until those three days have run, unless you ask us in writing to start sooner.
- This price does not expire. There is no window on it and no number that goes up if you think about it.
- The wood we haul is disposed of. If you want any kept back as firewood, say so before we load and we will cut it to rounds and stack it instead, at no extra charge.

A written quote, not a contract. The work is done under Sixfold's service agreement, given to you in full to read and keep before anything is signed.

The paperwork, and the help putting it together

Two pots of money exist whether or not you hire us, and both of them turn on documentation you cannot produce after the fact. That is the part we do for you, at no charge, on every job.

1 · THE COLORADO WILDFIRE MITIGATION TAX CREDIT

The state credit covers 100% of what you pay a contractor for qualifying vegetation work, up to $1,000 for work done in 2026. Secondary treatment of woody fuels — piling, chipping, or removing it from the site is one of the four measures the statute names, and it is the statute's own wording, not ours.

What we do about it:

- We fill in the eligibility record with you before the crew starts. Owner of record, how the land is held, and whether any grant or cost-share money is paying part of the bill — that last one changes the answer, and it is far cheaper to ask at the walk than to find out at invoicing.
- We itemise the invoice so the qualifying work is separated from anything that is not, by the state's own measure categories, rather than handing you one number.
- We write the work record — what was done, to which measure, and to what standard.
- We give you the photograph log, before and after, from fixed positions, with dates.
- We hand you the checklist for whoever prepares your return, naming the schedule the credit is claimed on and how receipts are attached. The whole file comes with the invoice, not weeks afterwards.

Where we stop: Sixfold does not prepare or file returns and does not issue a certification — no contractor can. Whether the credit applies to your return depends on your land and your income, and that is your accountant's call. Two calendar facts, neither of them ours: the Department of Revenue has not yet published the 2026 income limit, and for work done from 1 January 2027 the cap doubles to $2,000 and the credit becomes refundable.

2 · YOUR INSURER'S WILDFIRE RISK SCORE

Since 1 July 2026, a Colorado insurer that uses a wildfire risk score to price, surcharge or non-renew your homeowners policy has to send you that score in writing once a year, explain which features of your property drove it, publish what each mitigation action is worth, and give you a discount for documented mitigation.

The part most people are never told: once new mitigation work is done you can ask for a fresh score, and the insurer has to give you one within 30 calendar days. If you think a score is wrong you can appeal it — they must acknowledge in writing within 10 calendar days and decide within 30.

What we do about it: the same photographs, invoice and work record are the documentation that request needs, and we assemble them as one package addressed to your insurer rather than leaving you to work out what they want. We will sit down and help you put the re-score request together. You send it — we do not contact your insurer for you, and nobody can tell you in advance what the discount is worth, because the law makes each insurer publish its own figures and sets no rate. If you have had a risk-score letter or a non-renewal notice, bring it out when we start: it usually names the exact thing the model does not like.

THE OTHER WAY TO DO THIS

The hauling is the part you can decline. Option B — we chip it on site and the chips and rounds stay with you — is $2,000, on its own sheet. The $250 between the two sheets is smaller than most people expect, and it is worth knowing why: a chipper is slower than a trailer on a pile with this much oversized wood in it, so Option B needs a second full day on site, and that day costs about what the trailer and the tipping fees cost. What the $250 buys is removal. What it costs you is the chips and the firewood.

Both sheets carry the same paperwork. Nothing on this page depends on which option you pick, and none of it is charged for either way.
