Draft for review: not approved wording

This is the one-page agreement a 365 customer signs on 365aeration.com after Jen quotes by phone and takes half the price as a deposit. Signing it books the job. The customer types their name and ticks a box; the app keeps the time, the version and a fingerprint of exactly what they saw.

The wording was drafted from what the call agrees and how 365 works. It has not been reviewed by an attorney. The example below uses made-up details; the real form fills in each customer's own.

Questions for Brandon

1. Cancellation and the deposit. Nothing says what happens if the customer cancels. Is the deposit refundable, partly refundable, or kept if they cancel within a set time (for example 48 hours before the day)? missing
2. Rescheduling. Weather moves are covered (item 3). What if the customer asks to move the day? Free, or limited? missing
3. Damage to hidden lines. Item 2 asks them to mark sprinklers, pipes and dog fences. Should it also say we are not responsible for unmarked ones? (Colorado's 811 rules exempt aerators under 4 inches from locates; the old Sixfold agreement still promised a locate.) check
4. Access and pets. Should it ask for gates unlocked and pets inside on the day? optional
5. Results. Anything about results (seed germination depends on watering)? The site and posts avoid promising results; the agreement should too. optional
6. Payment of the balance. How is the balance paid on the day: card on file, Square in person, cash? Should the agreement say? check
7. Electronic signature. Typed name plus a consent box, with time, IP and a fingerprint of the text kept. Is that enough, or do you want a drawn signature or an emailed copy? check
