REAL WORK

A customer one-pager

A homeowner handout that explains a law change in plain words, with every figure sourced.

SIXFOLD 365

Sixfold 365
LAND · AERATION & SEEDING

WHO PAYS FOR WILDFIRE MITIGATION IN COLORADO

The rules on paying for wildfire mitigation changed this year.

Two of the changes are statewide. Neither one needs an application or a waiting list, and most people on this street haven't been told about either.

CHANGE ONE · COLORADO INCOME TAX CREDIT

The state covers the cost of the work, up to a cap

Colorado's wildfire mitigation tax credit reimburses 100% of what you spend on qualifying vegetation work, up to the cap for that year. There is no application and no waiting list — you claim it on your state income tax return.

TAX YEAR 2026
$1,000
Up to $1,000 back, at 100% of what the work costs.

TAX YEAR 2027
$2,000
Cap doubles, and the credit becomes refundable — you can receive it even if you owe no state tax.

- Vegetation work qualifies — thinning, fuel removal and defensible space, to Colorado State Forest Service standards. Available through tax year 2030.
- Income limits apply: $129,200 federal taxable income for 2025 (2026's is set at year end), rising to $300,000 AGI for 2027.
- Contractor invoices only — not your own labour, rented kit, or anything a grant covered.
- Covers vegetation work — not structural work like roofing, vents or siding.

Source: Colorado General Assembly 2026 tax expenditure evaluation; Colorado Department of Revenue — tax.colorado.gov/wildfire-tax-benefits. Confirm your own eligibility with your accountant.

CHANGE TWO · INSURANCE DISCLOSURE LAW

Your insurer now has to tell you your risk score — and discount the work you've done

Since 1 July 2026, this is law rather than courtesy. If your insurer uses a wildfire risk score to price, underwrite, non-renew or surcharge your policy, they must:

- Tell you your property's wildfire risk score, in writing, every year
- State what mitigation discounts are available to you
- Count the work you have actually done — defensible space specifically — in how they score and price the property
- Give you a discount for documented mitigation, even if they have no formal mitigation model of their own
- Let you appeal the score if you believe it is wrong

If a score notice arrived in your mail this summer, that law is why.